

Hello!

My name is Maxim Grishaev and here's a little bit about me and what I'm looking for.

I have almost 20 years of experience as a software engineer and more than 7 years of leading roles. I am happy to join in the effort of building and improving building UI/UX. A great user interface is crucial for business success, something that people love and remember.

In my past experience, I've played different roles in all kinds of companies - from startups and scale-ups to huge corporations.

From hardcore hands-on to leading teams, helping engineers to work as effectively as possible.

I believe in leading by example. It gives a natural drive and ignites interest in the whole team. I am striving for efficient workflow and removing bottlenecks. Well-established processes set teams up for success.

My standards for quality are very high. I am looking for a company where I can share my experience but grow, make an impact and achieve success together. So I have a lot to offer but expect a lot in return.

Looking forward to your response!
